

Assistant Professor in Public Law

Neapolis University Pafos announces one academic position at the rank of Assistant Professor in Public Law.

The Law Department offers graduate and postgraduate programmes that provide up-to-date knowledge in many areas of law which constitute the field of International and European Business Law, such as commercial law, company law, the law and regulation of competition, energy law, banking and insurance law, tax law and corporate governance. Lawyers and Law School graduates are provided with essential knowledge in Political Science and Economics and will be equipped with analytical, accountability and leadership skills in order to enhance their decision-making capacity and to promote good practice within the context of a changing and competitive International and Business Law environment.

To support our undergraduate and postgraduate teaching programmes and to strengthen further our research profile, we are now seeking to recruit an Assistant Professor in Public Law. Candidates should have a Ph.D. in Law awarded not earlier than 6 years from the date of this announcement and at least 4 years of teaching and/or active research experience at a University.

Candidates should also have significant teaching experience, as well as a strong record of research and publications in the area of Law. The post holder will play a leading role in developing the subject area and the ideal candidate will be expected to provide substantial academic and research leadership.

An internationally competitive remuneration package is offered according to qualifications and experience.
