

LECTURER OR ASSISTANT PROFESSOR IN PSYCHOLOGY

General description

The Department of Psychology of Neapolis University Pafos is seeking applications to fill two positions in Psychology at the rank of Lecturer or Assistant Professor. Candidates are expected to teach a wide variety of basic and advanced courses in their discipline. Full-time faculty members are also expected to attend faculty meetings and university events, serve on committees and engage in academic scholarship and professional development activities.

Areas of specialization

The applicants should be qualified to teach either in an applied psychology field (clinical, counseling, school psychology) or a theoretical field (developmental, health, educational psychology).

Qualifications and experience

For the rank of Lecturer, the required qualifications are the following:

The applicants should hold a doctoral degree in Psychology in one of the specified areas of study and have strong research skills.

For the rank of Assistant Professor, the required qualifications are the following:

The applicants should hold a doctoral degree in Psychology in one of the specified areas of study and have a minimum of three (3) years in total of University work or equivalent, after acquisition of a PhD, or holding a position at the rank of Lecturer at another recognized University.

Applicants are expected to have demonstrated a high level of academic competence, have experience of leading academic research, good teaching skills and extensive teaching experience, as well as strong international visibility within the academic community. In addition, experience of doctoral education, applying for external funding, international research co-operation and academic expert assignments, as well as experience of participation in administrative tasks within an academic department, faculty or university are expected.

The successful candidate is expected to show evidence of strong teaching skills and/or professional experience and a commitment to research excellence. He/she will teach at undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate levels and also contribute to the design and development of the Department's programs.

This position is an opportunity to join a high calibre, dynamic group that is well resourced, very active in research and teaches a wide variety of Psychology courses that attract the very best students from Cyprus and internationally.

Expected place of work is Pafos (Cyprus).

Competence in Greek and English languages is a requirement.

Benefits

We offer a competitive salary, stimulating research environment, a PhD program, generous research funding, and all the opportunities of a dynamic and well-established University.

Application procedure

The application for the above positions is to be addressed to the HR Department by email at: hrd@nup.ac.cy and application materials should include:

- Cover letter
- Curriculum Vitae
- List of publications (with the most significant publications highlighted)
- Teaching portfolio
- A research statement describing future research plans (3-4 pages)

CLOSING DATE: 15.07.2022